Dedication

John F. Pyne

Our yearbook is dedicated to John F. Pyne for his exciting English classes, loyalty to our class, and friendship.

As director of finance and administration, as a teacher, and as a friend, Mr. Pyne has served Rippowam Cisqua diligently for the past seven years. For those years, for our years, and for many more years to come, we thank you, Pyne.

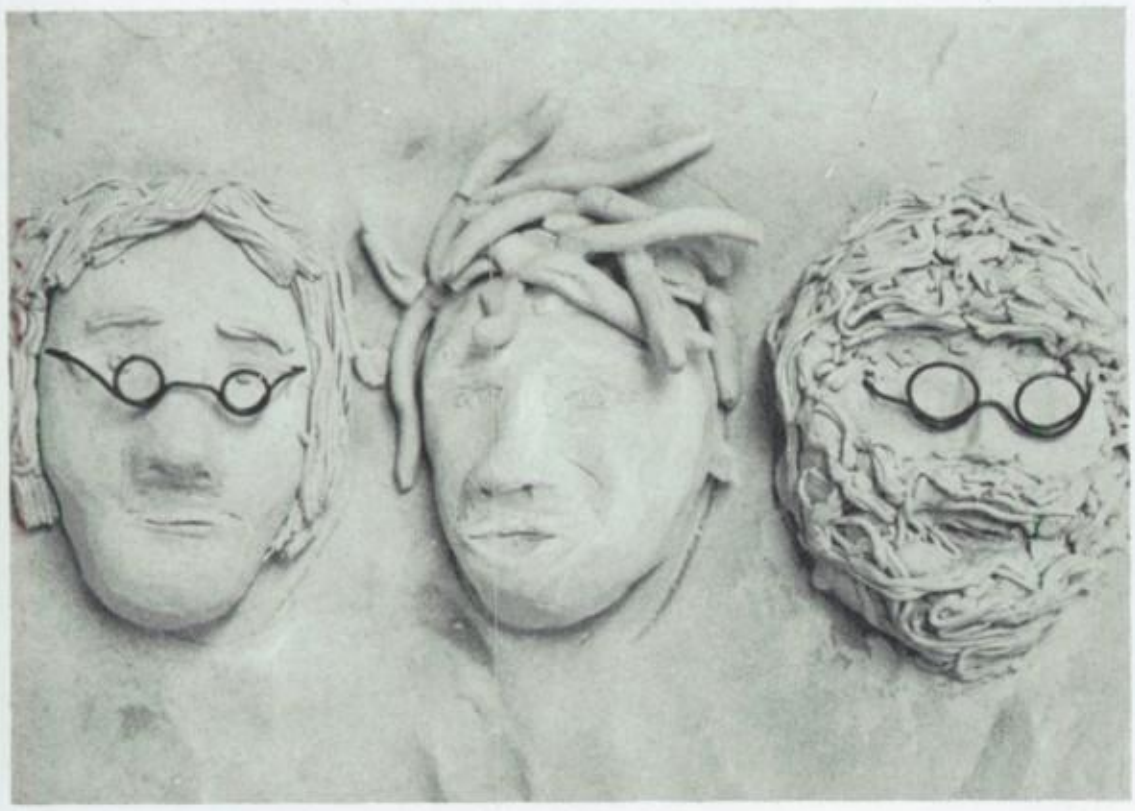
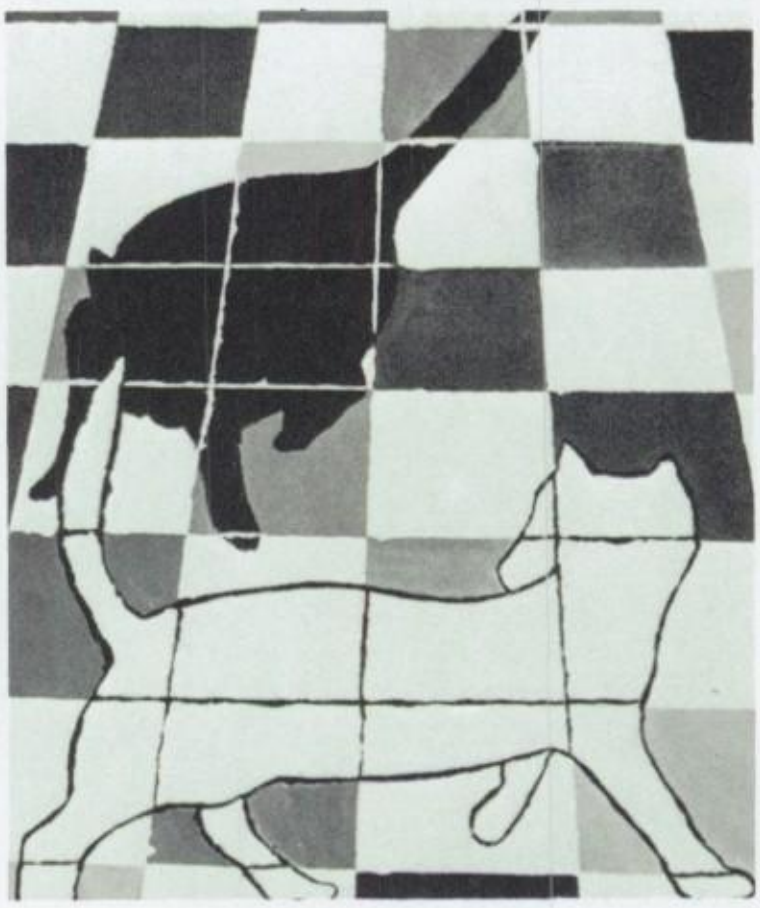
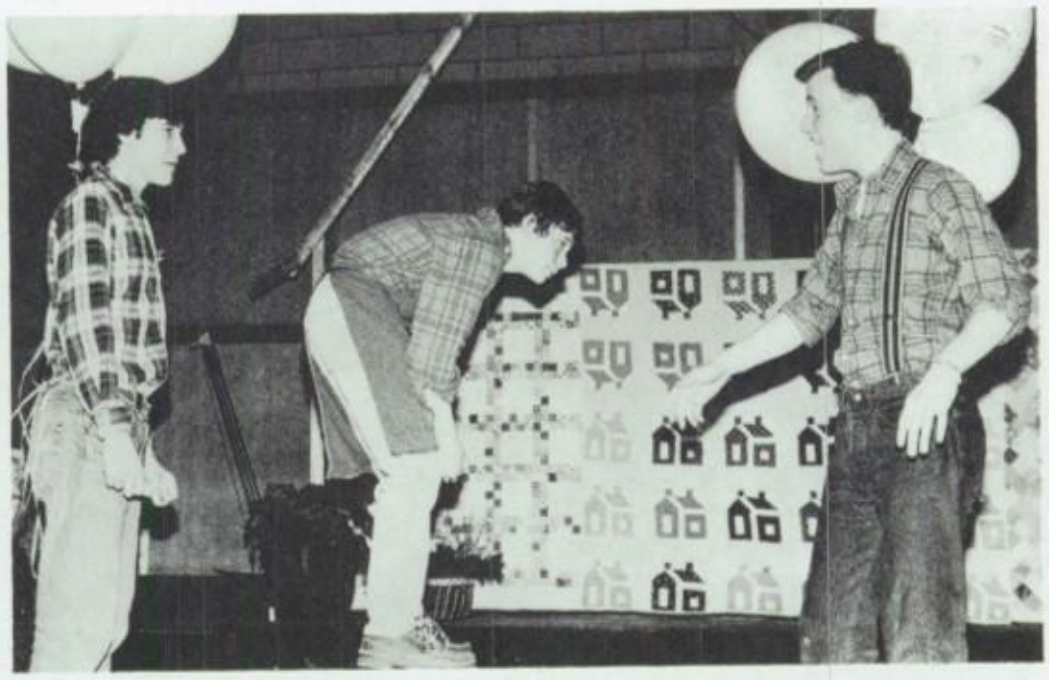
ACTIVITIES





Mountain Revelin'

December 18, 1986



Mountain Revelin' featured the combined talents of middle schoolers, upper schoolers, and faculty in a joyous celebration of the holiday season with an Appalachian flare.

Under the direction of Sue Fiala and Ashton Crosby, this year's Revels included a performance of the Crockett County Mummers; several shape note hymns of the early 1800's; Sherbourne, a hymn; a Jack tale called "Newground"; the American fiddle tune "Cripple Creek"; the Sourwood Mountain Skifflers; Shaker hymns; and various other skits, dances, musical renditions and hymns.

The Peace round which closed the evening provided the message for the Christmas and Hannukah season just as the students of Rippowam Cisqua began a long winter vacation.

Comes a Time . . . Allied Arts

Studio Art, Ceramics, Acting, Photography, Architecture, Court Singers, Computer, Woodshop, Orff Music, Art of the Sixties

Afternoons at Rippowam have provided numerous activities throughout the year. This year's Allied Arts program offered numerous activities from standard ones like Court Singers and woodshop to new innovations like Art of the Sixties and color photography.

Rippowam-Cisqua Day

Blue and Red Captains

Bill Lawrence and Chad Dickens of the S.A.B. are pictured with some of the food and gifts presented to Mrs. Viviano of the Northern Westchester Junior League. The gifts were Rippowam's contribution to Christmas Sharing.

TO THE CLASS OF 1987

. . . "First, I want you to think and tell me what made me give years to this work. Money? Fame? Charity? . . . Before you can do things for people, you must be the kind of man who can get things done. But to get things done, you must love the doing . . . The only thing that matters, my goal, my reward, my beginning, my end is the work itself. A thought. The one thought, the single thought that created the thing and every part of it. The thought which no one can change or touch . . . A private, personal . . . motivation . . . Maybe the concepts don't make sense. Maybe they don't mean what people have been taught to think they mean. But let's drop that now. If you've got to talk of something, let's talk of what we're going to do . . .

. . . Nothing is given to men on earth. Everything he needs has to be produced . . . he can survive by the independent work of his own mind or as a parasite of the minds of others. The creator originates. The parasite borrows . . . The moving force is the creative . . . which can not be given or received, shared or borrowed. It belongs to single, individual men. Men learn from one another. But all learning is only the exchange of material. No man can give another the capacity to think. Yet that capacity is our only means of survival . . .

. . . A creator's vision, his strength, his courage come from his own spirit . . . his self . . . It is the whole secret of his power . . . it is self-sufficient, self-motivated, self-generated . . . And only by living for himself is he able to achieve the things which are the glory of mankind. Such is the nature of achievement."

CONGRATULATIONS TO CHAD DICKENS

A quote to remember when faced with Contradictions
"A = A"

"For these truths hold good for everything that is, and not for some special genus apart from others. And all men use them because they are true of being qua being . . . For a principle which everyone must have who understands anything that is, is not an hypothesis . . . Evidently then such a principle is the most certain of all; which principle this is, let us proceed to say:

It is, that the same attribute cannot at the same time belong and not belong to the same subject in the same respect."

Bloomer Girl

Bloomer Girl, the spring musical production, starred a cast of more than fifty Upper Schoolers. Directed by Ashton Crosby and with musical direction by Susan Fiala, the show's story was set at the beginning of the Civil War when American women were just beginning to demand their rights, including the right to don sensible fashions. The production played one matinee and two evenings in May.
